

Group Life Assurance

What is Group Life Assurance?

Group Life Assurance (also known as Death in Service) pays out a lump sum to a named beneficiary upon death.

How much is the benefit?

The lump sum is usually based on a multiple of an employee's salary, for example two, three, or four times basic annual salary, however can also include other income.

When is the benefit payable?

The benefit is payable upon death of the individual. The money is paid by the insurer to the trustees to pass onto the employee's nominated beneficiaries.

Medical underwriting

Group Life Assurance benefits from a free cover limit. This is the amount of cover an employee can obtain without the requirement for medical underwriting and therefore medical underwriting is not typically required.

Tax treatment of benefit

As the policy is written under trust, the lump sum benefit for employees should fall outside of the deceased's estate and therefore is usually not subject to Inheritance Tax. Group life Assurance cover is not currently a P11D benefit.
